A food journal written in memories, not ink...

Welcome To 38 Barracks

A food journal written in memories, not ink

They say a soldier never really retires he just finds a new mission. For Colonel A.K. Bakshi, that mission was to create a place that feels like home. After 51 years of service and journeys across India, he carried back memories, recipes, and meals shared with fellow soldiers from hot curries in Ladakh to quiet cups of chai on duty nights.

When he retired, he transformed those memories into 38 Barracks — a space designed to resemble his own home, filled with medals, journals, and stories from his years in uniform. Every dish here comes from his food journal, inspired by India's regions and the brotherhood of the forces.

At 38 Barracks, you're not a guest, you're family. Because some places don't just serve food, they serve warmth, stories, and the feeling of home.
